

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The acoustic characteristics of lightweight multilayer construction panels have been improved by the formation of three-dimensionally meandering curved slots or rows of slot sections 5 in the core of the panels. The slot depth varies along the length of the curved slots. The slots or rows of slots are spaced from each other by an on-center spacing that is preferably constant along the length of the slots.